

APRIL 4th

On this day in...

2006: The Padres' home game (only the second game of the season) against the San Francisco Giants was rained out at Petco Park, the first rainout to ever occur at Petco Park (opened 4/8/2003). It was the first rainout in nearly eight years (since 5/12/1998 at Qualcomm Stadium) and only the second rainout in nearly 23 years (4/20/1983 at then Jack Murphy Stadium).

1989: Daily high temperature records were broken at ALL recording stations in Southern California on this day and on 4/5. Many monthly record high temperatures were set for April: 112° in Palm Springs, 106° LA, 104° Riverside, 103° Escondido, 101° Tustin, 98° San Diego, 95° Victorville, 76° Big Bear Lake. This was part of major heat wave from late March into mid April.

1961: It was 83° in Palomar Mountain, the highest temperature on record for April.

1927: 1.97 inches of rain fell in Palm Springs, the greatest daily amount on record for April.
